

Personal Injury Team Wins £2.9m for Client

Prince Evans is delighted to announce that its Personal Injury Team has recovered compensation of £2.9m for Miss O in a claim against Eastbourne Hospitals NHS Trust arising out of their medical negligence in treating Miss O for a minor injury which resulted in her sustaining incomplete tetraplegia

Miss O, 48 years old, was admitted to the hospital with minor injuries following a road accident, and had she been examined and managed competently should have been discharged quickly without any long-term problems. But due to their failure to follow basic procedures including x-rays, a part of the injury was overlooked with the result that she was mismanaged, and the devastating consequence of tetraplegia ensued

Prince Evans' Partner Bryan Neill took up the case for her, fighting it through the High Court in London and securing recovery of this very substantial award of damages for her

Miss O has decided not to invest in a Structured Settlement. Instead after obtaining and carefully considering with her advisers detailed investment advice she has decided upon a large range of investments that provide her with a substantial annual income which is more than sufficient to provide for all of her current needs, and which is structured so that the capital and income will still be able to provide for her needs in the future and in her old age – all part of Prince Evans' all-round service and support to its clients
